

POST DISSERTATION DISCOVERY DATE LIST

The dates given are those of the publication of a notice of the manuscript which brought the discovery to the attention of the musicological public. The (otherwise unfortunate) isolation and specialization of music journals as such makes it easier for the later sources to determine which publications to include as designed to bring notice to musicologists. Some of the manuscripts listed as first appearing in Johannes Wolf's 1904 publication were mentioned in earlier catalogs, but there is no indication that scholarship on the musical contents of these sources was conducted prior to Wolf's history.¹

Manuscript	Year	Discovery
Squarcialupi	by 1774 ²	Angelo Maria Bandini, Catalogus codicum manuscriptorum Bibliotcae Mediceae Laurentianae. ³
Pit.	1827	François-Joseph Fétis, Revue musicale 1, pp. 106-115. ⁴
Mod A	by 1868	A. Cappelli, Poesie musicali dei secoli 14, 15 e 16 (Bologna: Presso Gaetano Romagnoli).
Strasbourg 222	1870	Auguste Lippmann, "Essai sur un manuscrit du quinzième siècle découvert dans la Bibliothèque de la ville de Strasbourg," Bulletins de la Société pour la Conservation des Monuments Historiques d'Alsace Serie 2, 7, pp. 73-76. Destroyed in the same year as the announcement.
Roquefort	1876	Fétis, Histoire générale de la musique depuis les temps les plus anciens jusqu'à nos jours , vol. 5 of 5 vols, (Paris: Didot), but see, "Lost sources" in the following table.

¹ An excellent summary of the historiography of the Paduan fragments appears in Anne Hallmark's "Some Evidence for French Influence in Northern Italy, c. 1400," in Studies in the Performance of Late Medieval Music, edited by Stanley Boorman (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1983), p. 197. The compilation of this table was aided substantially by the inventory of literature organized by source which Viola L. Hagopian prepared for the largest and most important sources in her Italian Ars Nova Music: A Bibliographical Guide to Modern Editions and Related Literature, Second edition (Berkeley: University of California Press, 1973).

² "By (date)" will be used instead of just a date if the first traceable discussion of the manuscript seems to assume some prior knowledge of the source's existence. John Nádas has recently informed me of documents which push this date back by at least a year.

³ Wolf, 1904 gives the first substantial musical description of the manuscript.

⁴ See also Antonio Marsand, I manoscritti italiani della Regia Biblioteca parigina, 2 volumes (Paris: Stamperia reale, 1835), vol. 1, p. 570. Fétis seems unaware of the existence of Squarcialupi when describing Pit.

Perugia Ghisi	1952	Ghisi, “L’Ordinarium Missae nel XV secolo ed i primordi della parodia.” (Presented 1950. Published 1952). Shown to him by Giovanni Cecchini. Lost for many decades. Rediscovered after 2000 by Marco Gozzi.
Padua 1106 (Pad D)	1955	Plamenac, “Another Paduan Fragment of Trecento Music.” Journal of the American Musicological Society 8 (1955), pp. 165–181. Plamenac remarks that the manuscript had been earlier reported by Walter S. Rubsam, “Music Research in Italian Libraries,” Notes 6 (1949), p. 564, but the reference had not been pursued.

⁷ The manuscript was discovered in 1938, two years prior to this publication. First extensive inventory in Nino Pirrotta and Ettore LiGotti, “Il Codice di Lucca,” Musica Disciplina 3 (1949), pp. 119–38 and in the two following issues. To this, we add new fragments discovered by Nádas and Ziino published in 1990 (The Lucca Codex) and 2005 (“Two newly discovered leaves of the Lucca Codex,” Studi Musicali 34.1, pp. 3–23): bifolio 50/51 containing L’alma mia piange, Con gli ochi assai ne miro, Donna i’prego Amore, Poy che da ti me convien partir via (continued on 52r) discovered in 1996 by Giorigo Tori, and bifolio 73/76 (Prest a la mort (unicum), Atandre, atandre, et atendusay (Antonii), Noble signore(?), Or sus) discovered in 1997 by Sergio Nelli).

This table does not list manuscripts which fall out of this study because they are too early (Oxford 112 and Venice San Giorgio, known since Gallo’s study in 1968) or too late (such as Gubbio Corale discovered in 1996 by Reinhart Strohm, or Casanatense 2151).

It is an unfortunate reality that the last century of scholarship and discovery has also been a century of disappearance and destruction of manuscripts. Table 1.3 lists those lost sources known to have existed by the time of modern scholarship in music (c. 1800). Unlike the previous table, all lost manuscripts containing Italian trecento music are included, regardless of provenance or dating:⁸

⁸ One might note that nearly every fragment is a testimony to lost notated music, a topic which will be taken up later in this chapter. Beyond this, there are numerous other documents attesting to further losses. For an overview of the problem and opportunities to learn even from lost sources, see Martin Staehelin,

TABLE 1.3: LOST, STOLEN, OR DESTROYED MANUSCRIPTS CONTAINING ITALIAN MUSIC

Manuscript	Year lost	Details and reports of loss
Strasbourg 222	1870	Presumed destroyed in fire. An inventory and partial copy, executed by Coussemaker, exists as Brussels, Bibliothèque du Conservatoire Royal de Musique, MS 56.286.
Roquefort	by 1904	Although it was thought to have disappeared soon after its discovery, the manuscript seems to have been an invention of Fétis's. The work of Earp shows that it is to be identified with the Berkeley manuscript and does not possess any Italian music. ⁹
Egidi	[unknown]	Preserved in a photographic negative given by Egidi to Kurt von Fischer. Computer enhancement of the blurry photograph published in Di Bacco and Nádas, "The Papal Chapels."
Warsaw 378	1944	Preserved as a photographic copy by Maria Szczepańska in Poznań, Biblioteka Uniwersytecka im. Adama Michiewicza, MS 695.
Guardiagrele 2 & 3	by 1996	Described in print as lost by Ziino, "Dal latino al cumanico, ovvero osservazioni su una versione trecentesca della sequenza Saginsamen bahasiz kaniñi in notazione mensurale," in Trent'anni di ricerca musicologica: studi in onore di F. Alberto Gallo , edited by Patrizia Dalla Vecchia and Donatella Restani (Rome: Edizioni Torre d'Orfeo, 1996), pp. 31-48, but known to have been stolen much earlier.
Rome Trastevere 4	by 1998	Reported lost in Di Bacco and Nádas, "Papal Chapels," p. 59.
Venice Giorgio	by 2005	Reported lost in Brumana and Ciliberti, Frammenti Musicali del Trecento nell'incunabolo Inv. 15755 N. F. p. 94
Stresa 14 (?)	unknown	Margaret Bent privately reported that this fragment was missing. Upon my visit to the library, the manuscript was reported as in transit between two different storage centers and not available, but its loss could not be confirmed.

This chart does not include several lost French sources which would be important for understanding music manuscript structure in the fourteenth century, such as the lost Maggs Rotulus.¹⁰

"Mehrstimmige Repertoires im 14. und 15. Jahrhundert: Das Problem der verlorenen Quellen," in Atti del XIV congresso della società internazionale di musicologia, Bologna, 27 agosto – 1 settembre 1987, Vol. 1 (Round Tables) (Turin: E.D.T., 1990), pp. 153–59.

Nor does it contain pieces or polyphonic manuscripts which are mentioned in primary source testimonies but for which we have no evidence to believe they survived into the twentieth century, such as Gherardello's Credo or a quaternion of motets in Cividale during the mid-1360s.¹¹

¹¹ Gherardello's work is mentioned by Kurt von Fischer in “The sacred polyphony of the Italian Trecento,” op. cit., p. 145. The reference stems from Simone Peruzzi's sonnet on the death of Gherardello, transcribed in Johannes Wolf, “Florenz in der Musikgeschichte des 14. Jahrhunderts,” Sammelände der Internationalen Musikgesellschaft 3.4 (August 1902), p. 611. In Fischer's discussion, he speculates that there could have been a complete Mass cycle by the composer. There does not seem to be enough information in the sonnet to justify this supposition. No composer from the trecento is known to have written more than two different types of Mass movements. Only Gratiosus composed one of the Mass movements with a long text (Gloria or Credo) and a movement with a shorter text (in this case, a Sanctus). Margaret Bent called “striking” the lack of Kyrie, Sanctus, and Agnus Dei settings by Ciconia—otherwise the most prolific composer of polyphonic Mass movements of the era—and she noted that his output roughly reflects the proportions in which these movements were composed at the time. (The Works of Johannes Ciconia (Polyphonic Music of the Fourteenth Century 24), (Monaco, Éditions de l'Oiseau-Lyre, 1984), p. xi). For the Cividale motets, see Chapter 2 below.
