*According to the identical rubrics in the Parisian chant MSS F-Pn lat. 15181 and F-Pn lat. 10482, the respond section of O3 starts again from the beginning ("reincipitur") after the GP. At this point in both sources, an incipit with the text and melody of the first word ("verbum") is given, followed by a more ornate, expanded version of the respond's final melisma, beginning with the text "gratie." I have assumed that the respond is performed in full up to the point of the substituted closing portion starting with "gratie," and have supplied the music accordingly. It is conceivable, though, that the intention was to perform only the opening word ("verbum"), then have it followed by the expanded "gratie" segment. As a result, I have set off that portion of the respond that would be omitted in this circumstance with dashed barlines. It is also possible to begin the 2℟ with the polyphonic setting of "verbum" from before, no matter what perfomance alternative is used.

*The extent of the repetendum given after the verse here conforms to the indications in F-Pn lat. 15181. In F, a 2℟ (not transmitted in W2), directly succeeds the ℣, and a GP follows thereupon in both MSS. No GP occurs in 15181. Such placement in F might conceivably suggest a full repeat of the ℟ after the ℣, although that seems rather improbable. As this evidence seems to contradict the only two other responsory settings in F that are fully outfitted with both a GP and 2℟ (Descendit [O2] a3, f. 14r, and Sint lumbi [O28] a2, f. 83r), the 2℟ segment here has been rearranged to follow the GP, rather than precede it.

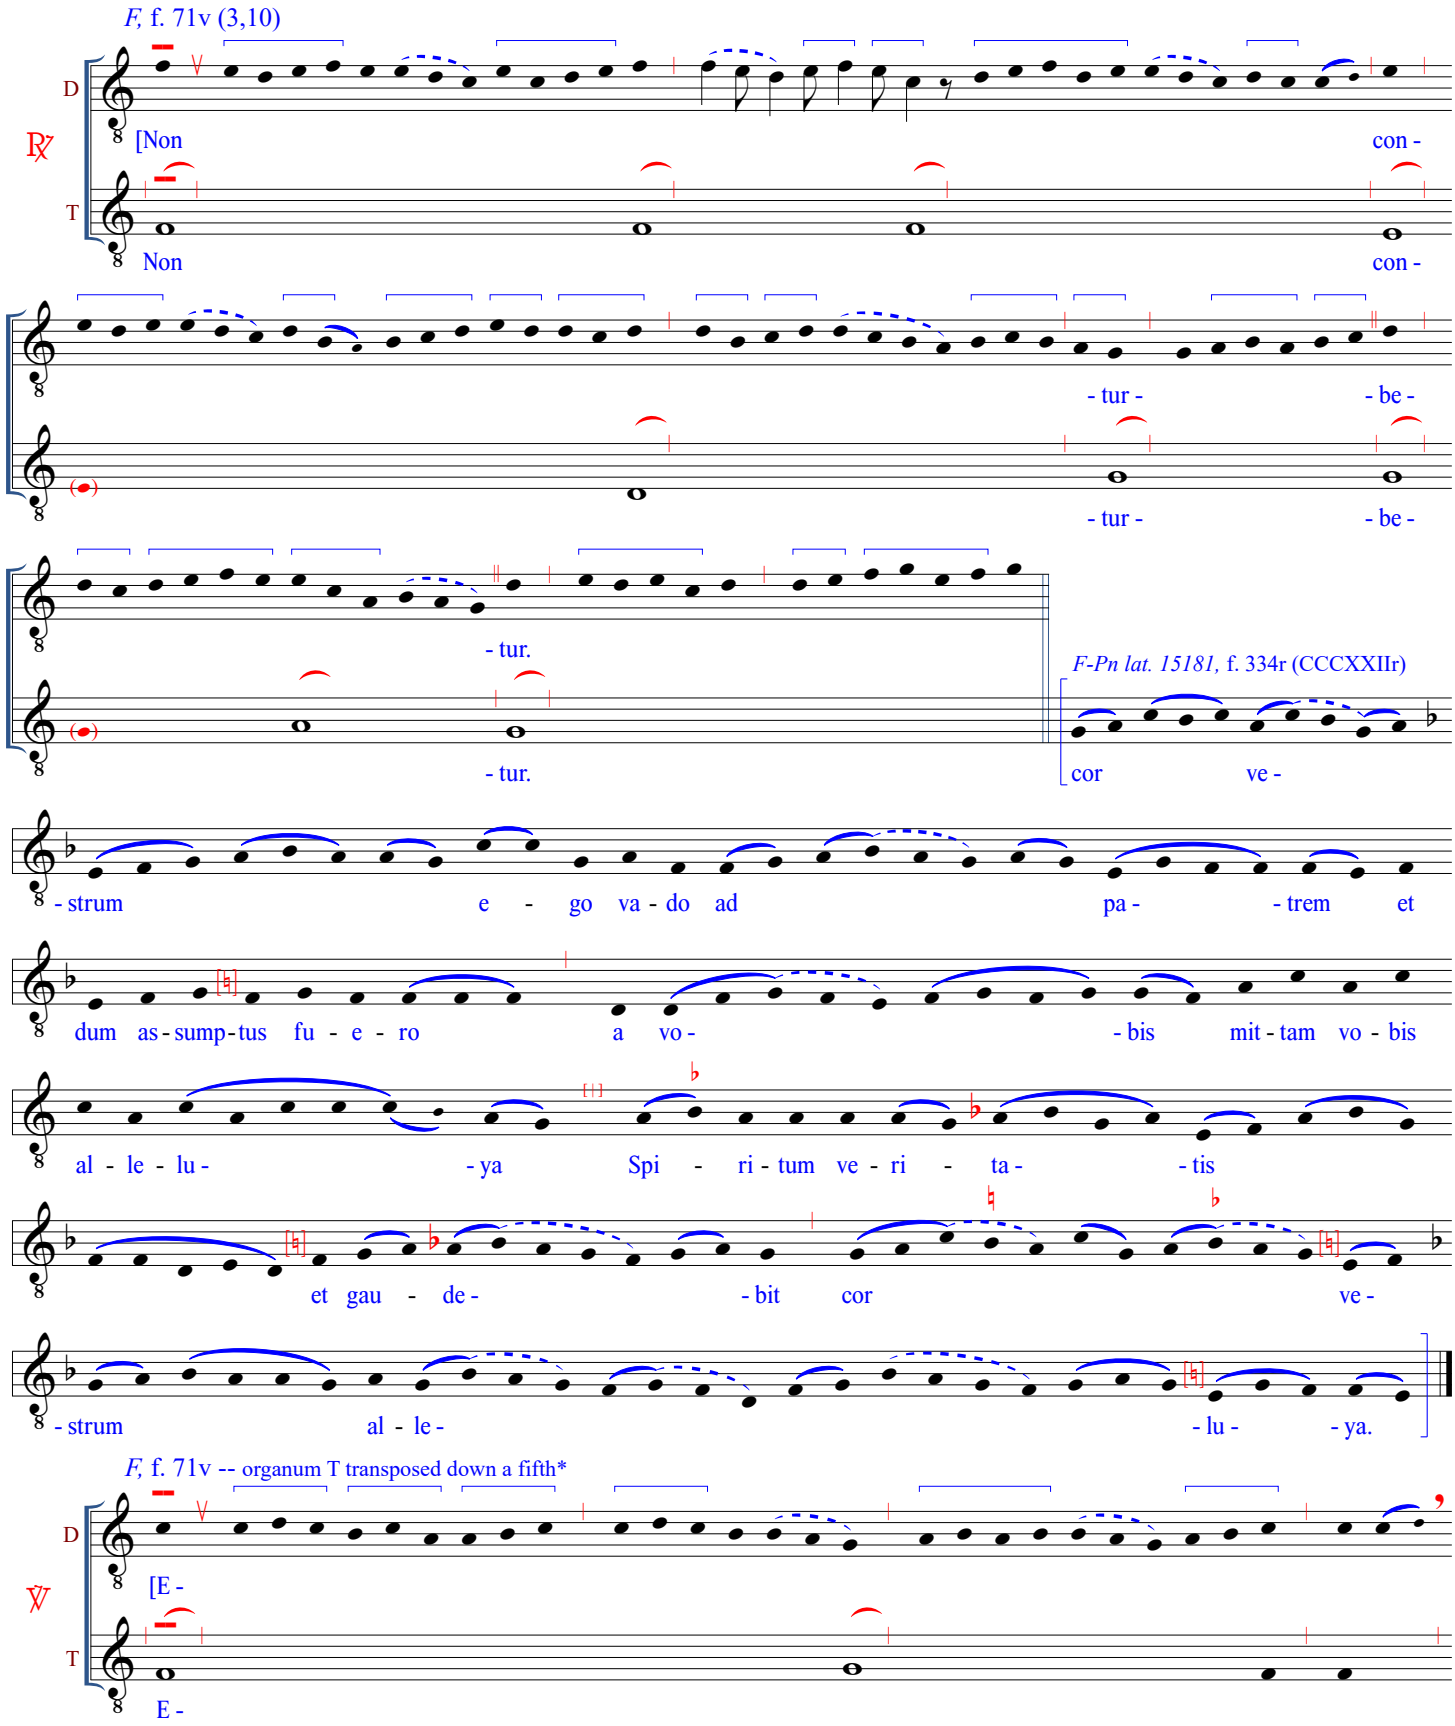
NON CONTURBETUR. EGO ROGABO
Responsory [O10]



*The polyphonic settings of the verse and GP are written a fifth lower in comparison to the respond and extant Parisian chant MSS; the chant repetenda of these sections have been held at the same pitch level as in the opening respond, although they could also be performed at the transposed level. See also the similar transpositional distinctions in the verse of O11 (Dum conplerentur. Repleti sunt, F, f. 72r), and the more curious internal shifting that goes on in the F version of the verse of M18 (Alleluia. Christus resurgens, F, f. 112r). The closing remarks for this latter piece include a list of organa that feature transposition.

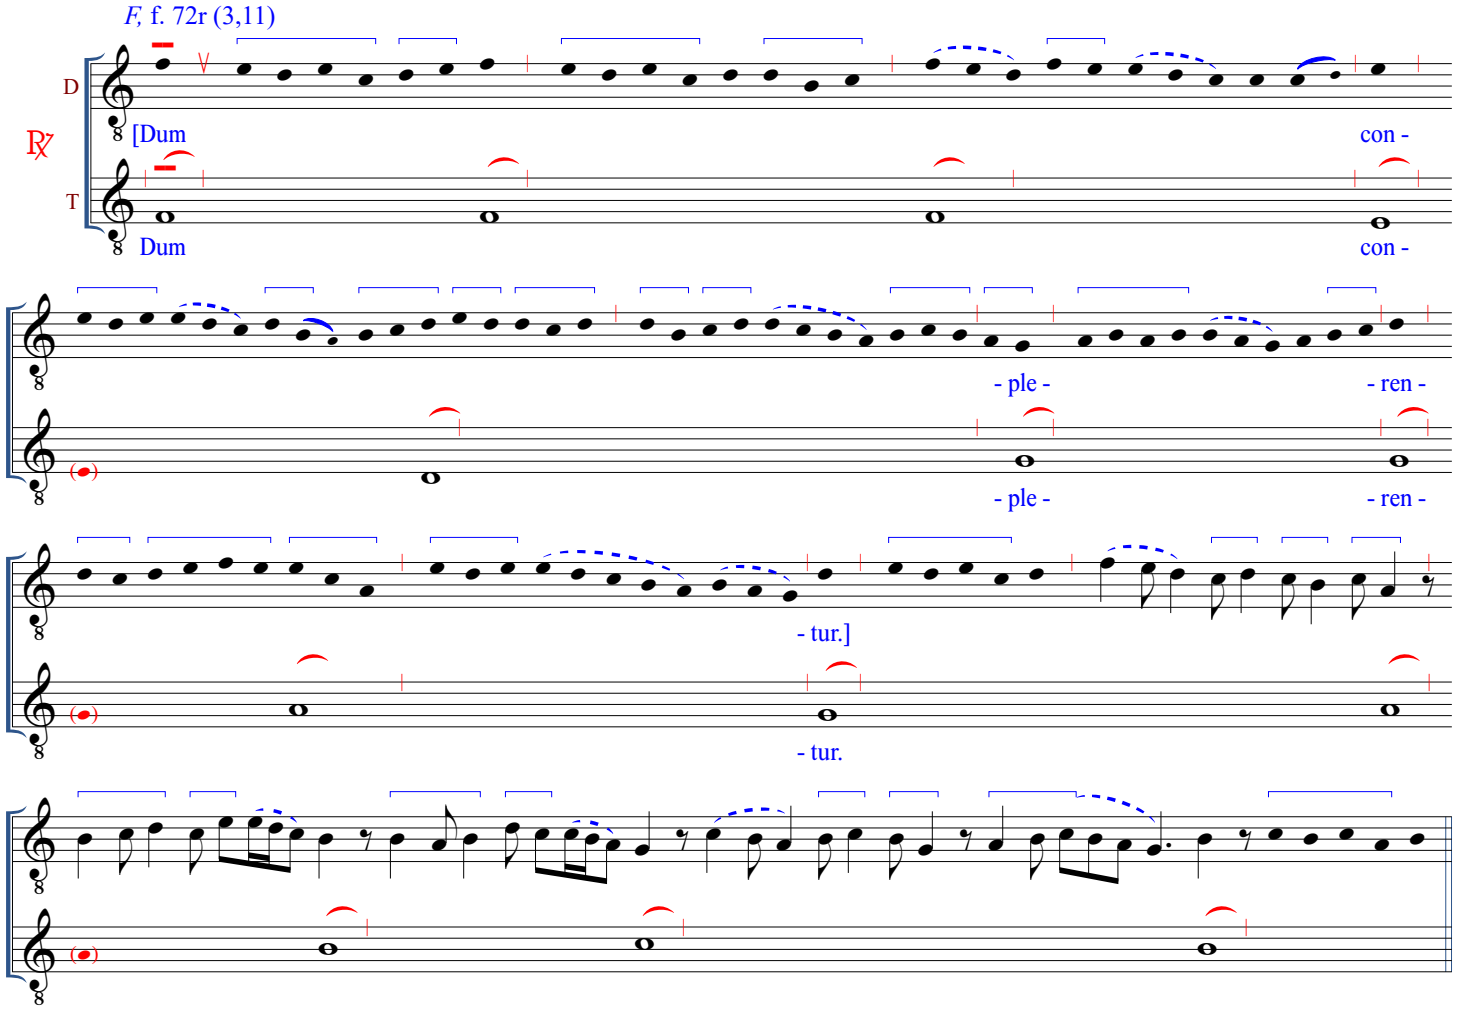
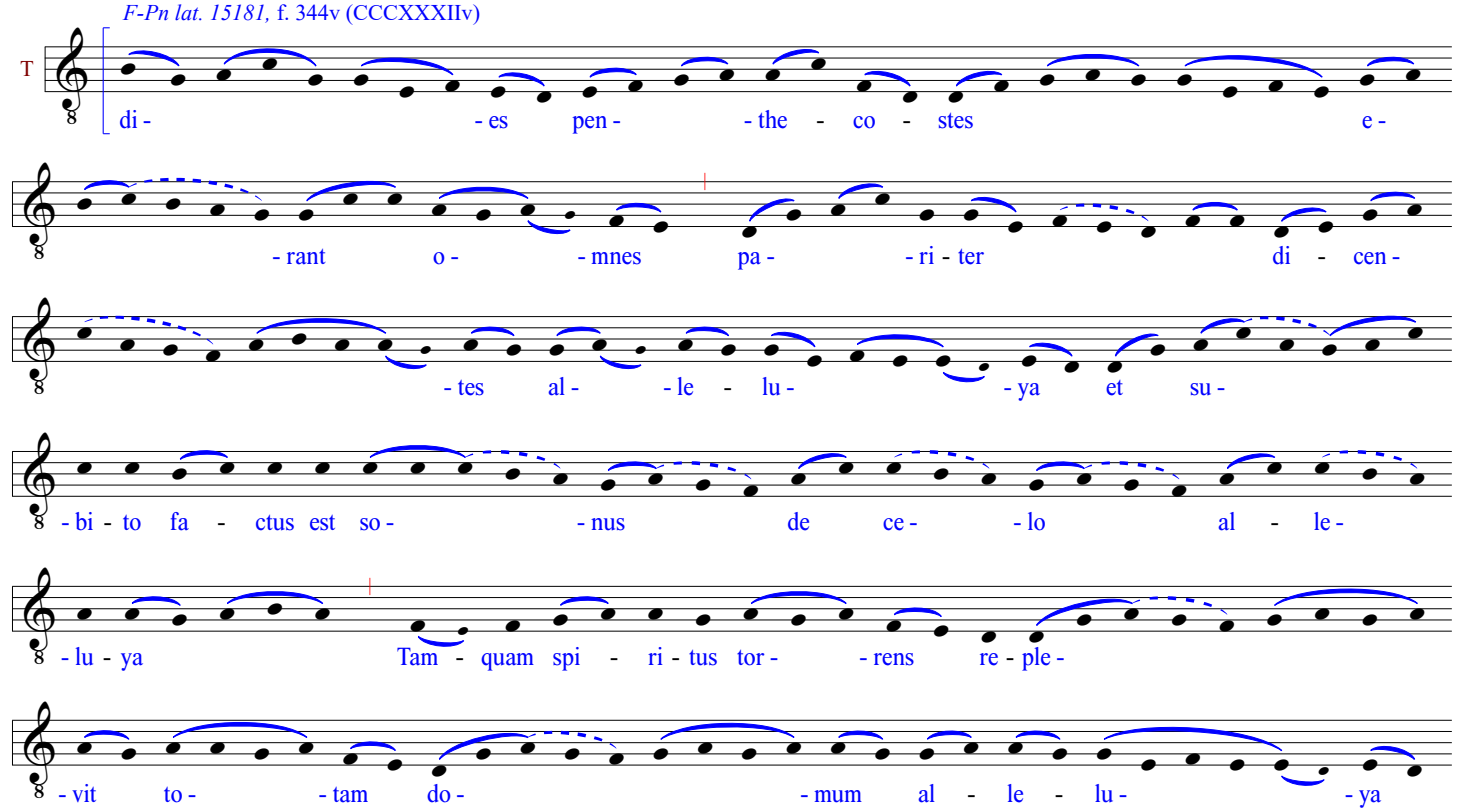
DUM CONPLERENTUR. REPLETI SUNT OMNES

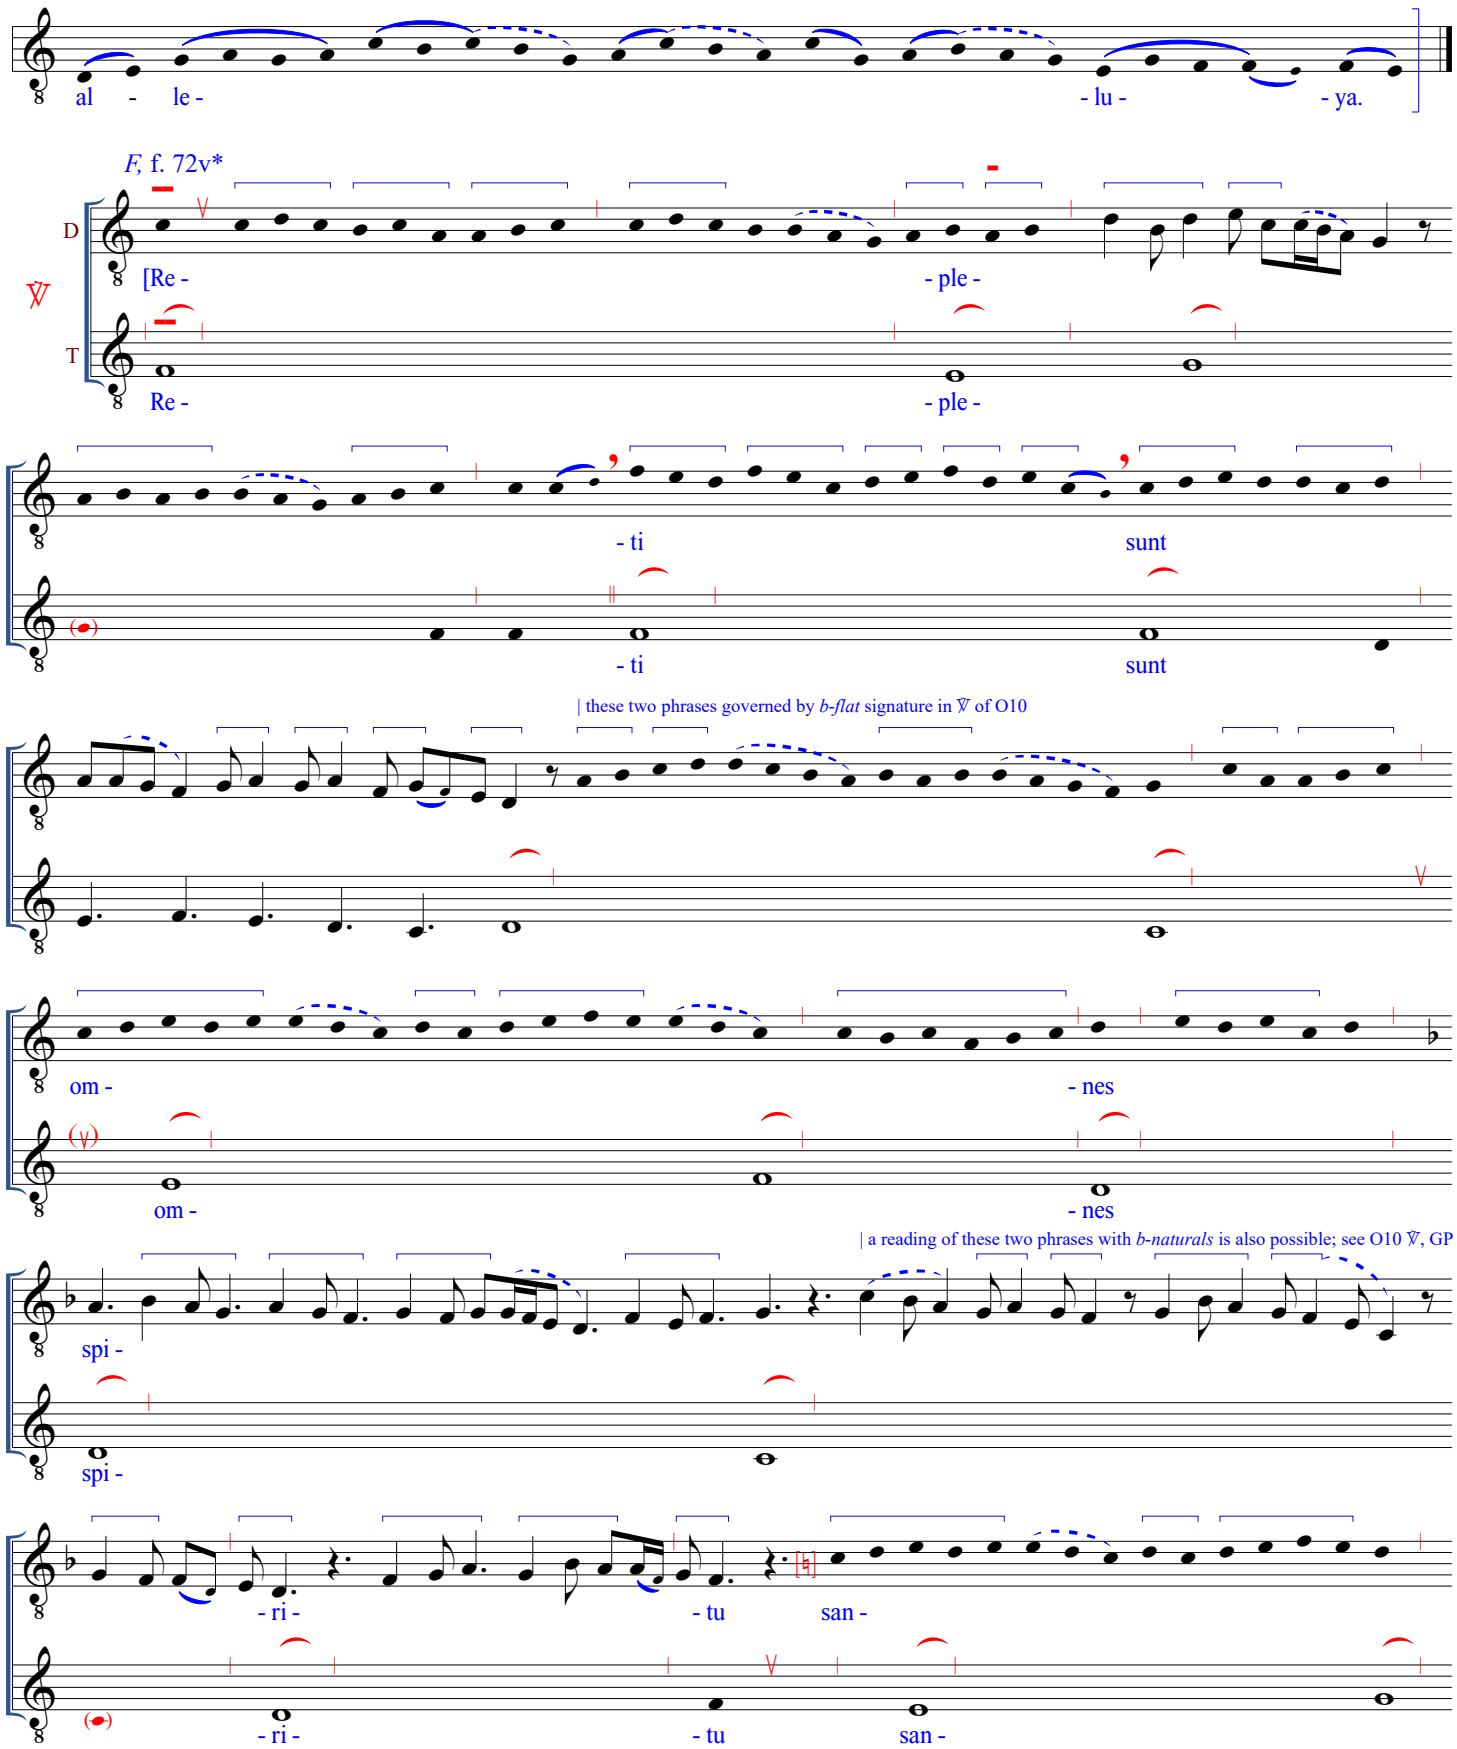
Responsory [O11]

F, f. 72r (3,11)

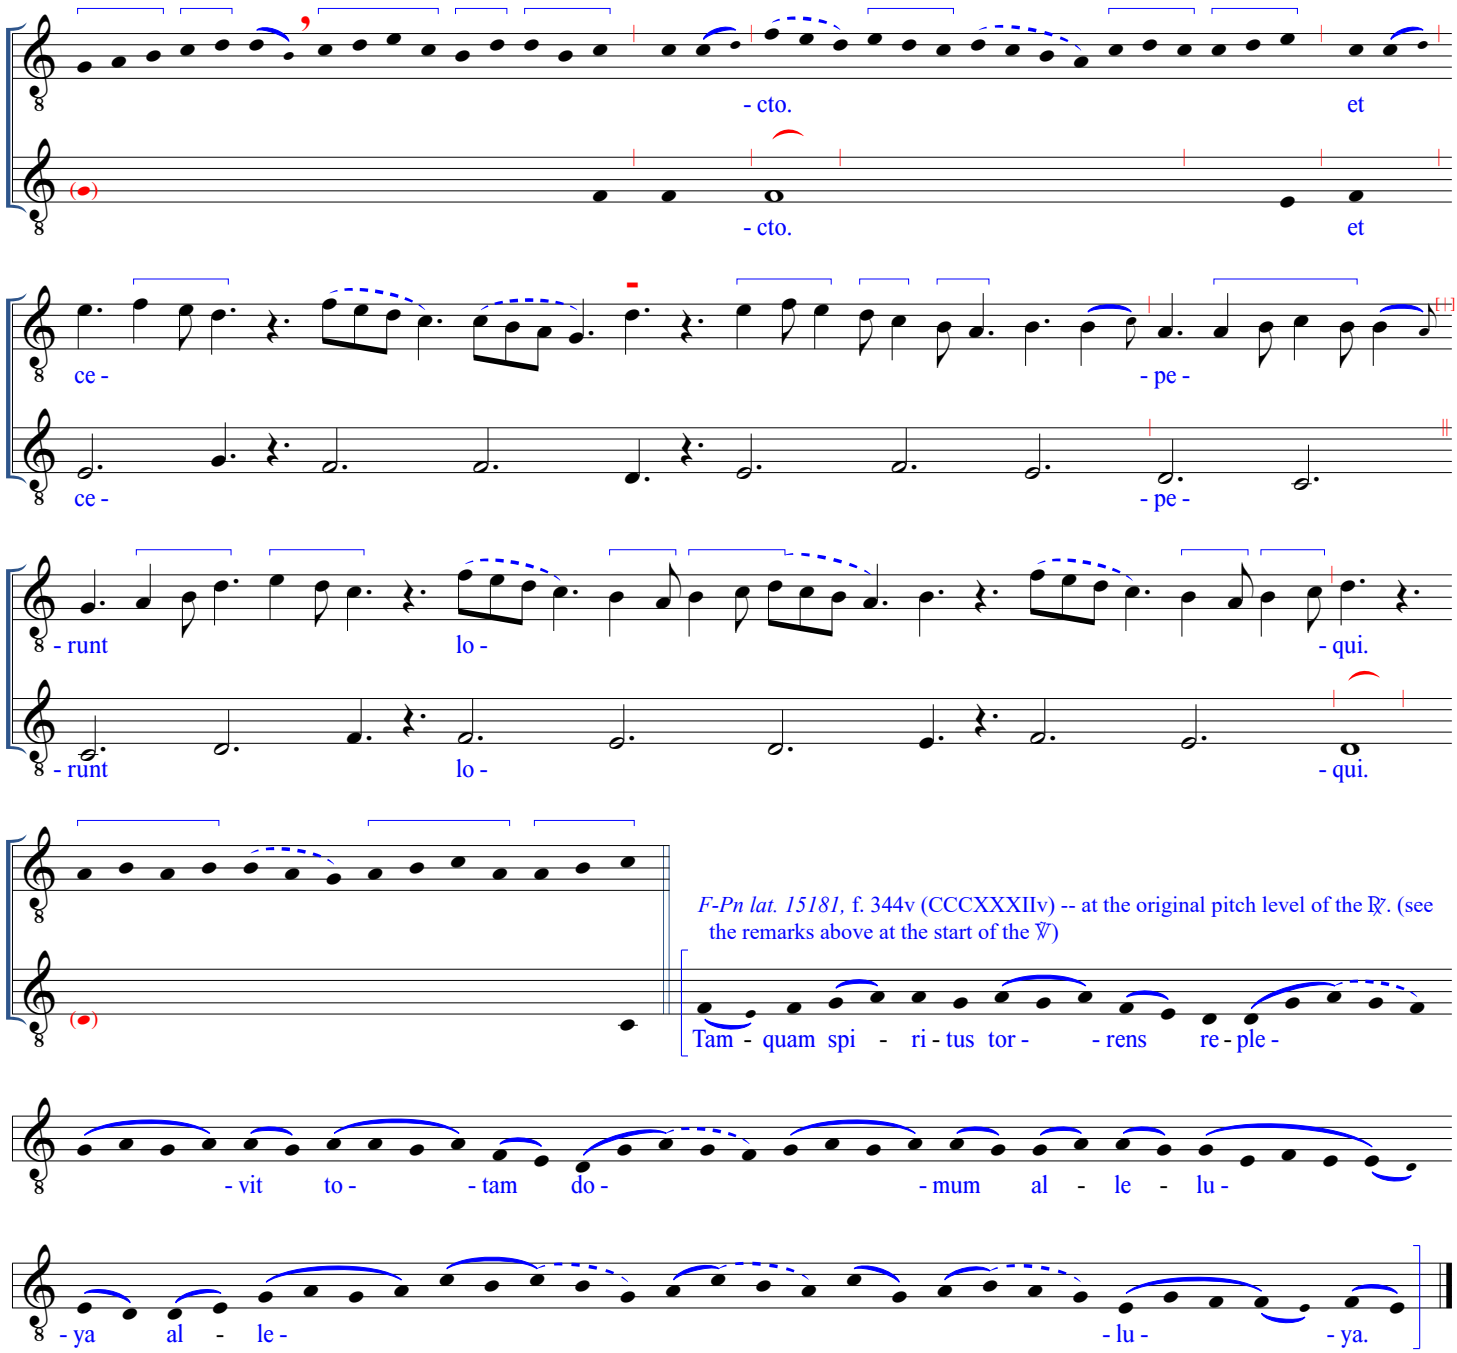


F-Pn lat. 15181, f. 344v (CCCXXXIIv)





*The organum setting of the verse is written a fifth lower in comparison to the respond and extant Parisian chant MSS; the chant repetendum has been held at the same pitch as in the respond, although it could also be performed at the transposed level. Cf. the comments on the GP, below. See also the similar transpositional distinctions in the verse of O10 (Non conturbetur. Ego rogabo, F, f. 71v), and the more curious internal shifting that goes on in the F version of the verse of M18 (Alleluia. Christus resurgens, F, f. 112r). The closing remarks for this latter piece include a list of organa that feature transposition.



F-Pn lat. 15181, f. 344v (CCCXXXIIv) -- at the original pitch level of the 𝄢. (see the remarks above at the start of the 𝄡)

(No polyphonic GP is provided for O11 in F, but the one from the previous responsory, [Non conturbetur. Ego rogabo, O10, F, f. 71v], is likely to have played this role. This is suggested particularly by the state of these two organa in W2, where -- except for the final flourish -- the same GP for O10 is recopied to serve for O11. As with its organum for the 𝄡, the T of the O10 GP is transposed down a fifth [as is the 𝄡 of O11; see the remarks above]. An alternative GP in chant is provided just below -- at the original pitch level of the 𝄢 -- should performers wish to exercise that option. The chant GP may also be performed at the transposed level)

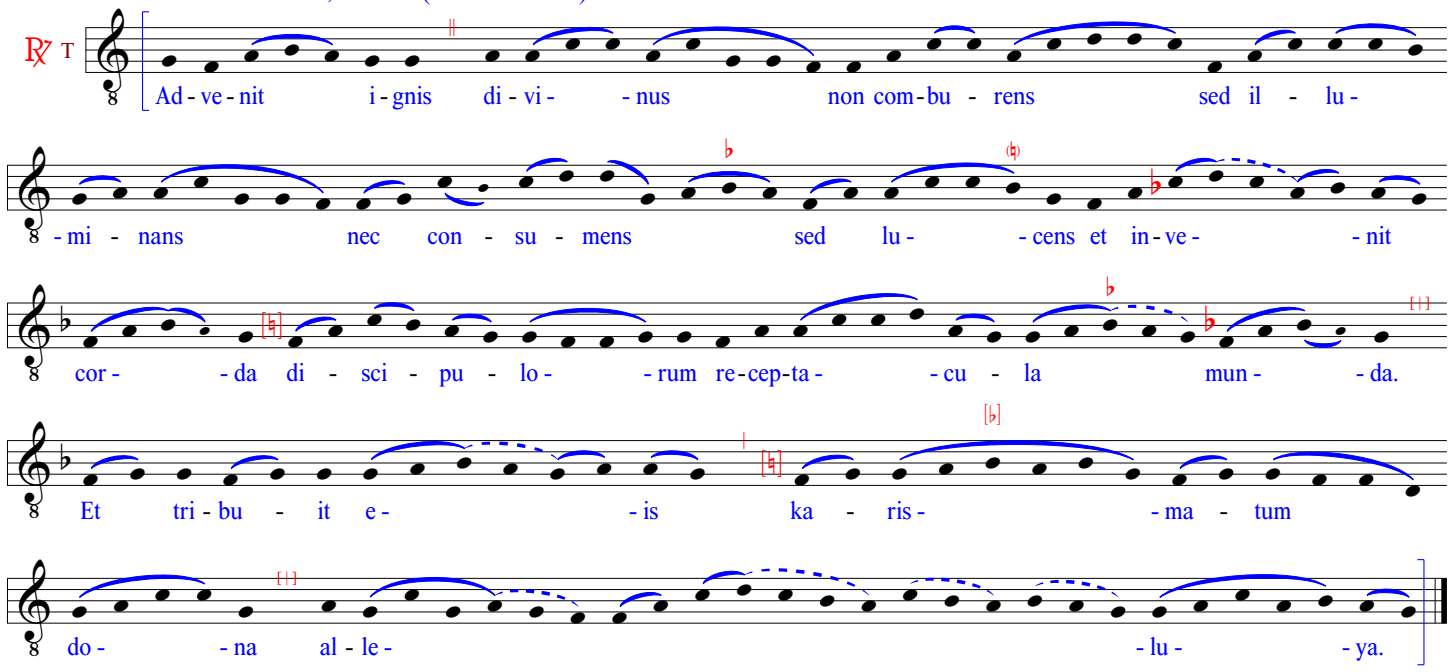
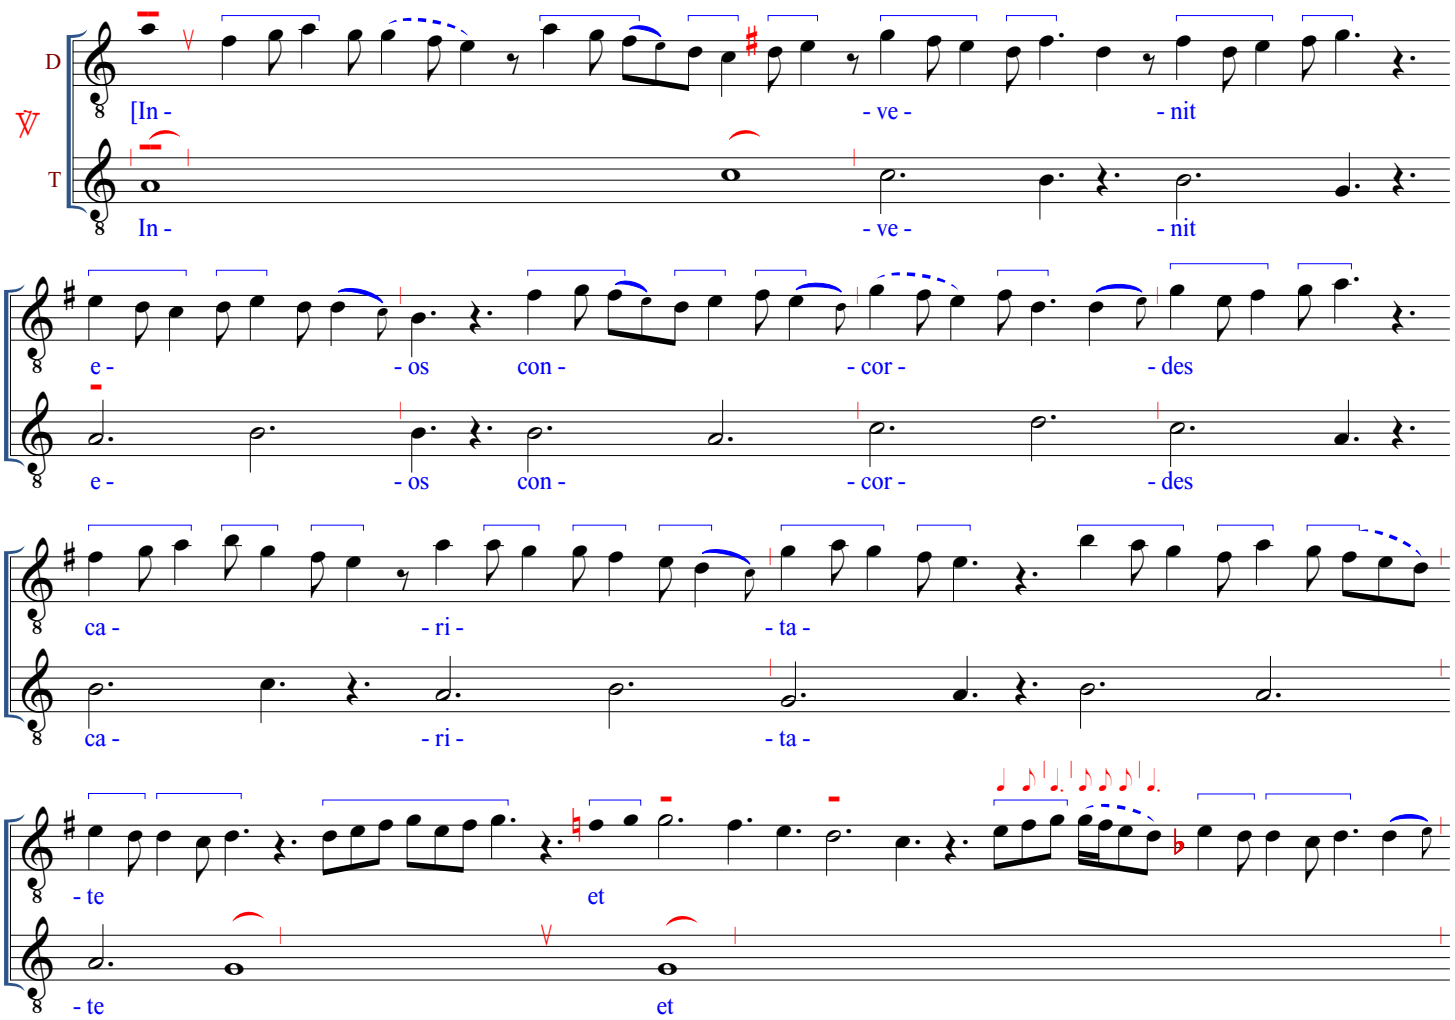
Processional responsory [O12]

F-Pn lat. 15181, f. 345v (CCCXXXIIIv)



F, f. 72v (3,12)*



*Due to the small number and formulaic nature of the organal passages in this piece, plus the fact that some of them appear elsewhere in F in the context of discant, all have been rendered with specific rhythms in this case, in order to demonstrate how they could be executed in a stricter fashion if desired.

(Since the polyphonic setting of this responsory in F is intended to serve in the context of the liturgical procession that occurred after Terce and prior to the celebration of Mass on the feast of Pentecost, it is unlikely that a GP or subsequent repetition of any portion of the ℟ would be included in such a performance. Rubrics from the processioners of Notre Dame for this specific case also make no mention of any material following the execution of the preceding repetendum, Et tribuit eis, after the ℣ [see Wright, Music and Ceremony, 341 and 370, cited according to B-Br 1799, f. 98v]. As a result, the remainder of this piece, presented as it occurs in F-Pn lat. 15181 as the third of three responsories within the Matins ceremonies of Pentecost at Notre Dame, is offered chiefly for informational purposes.)

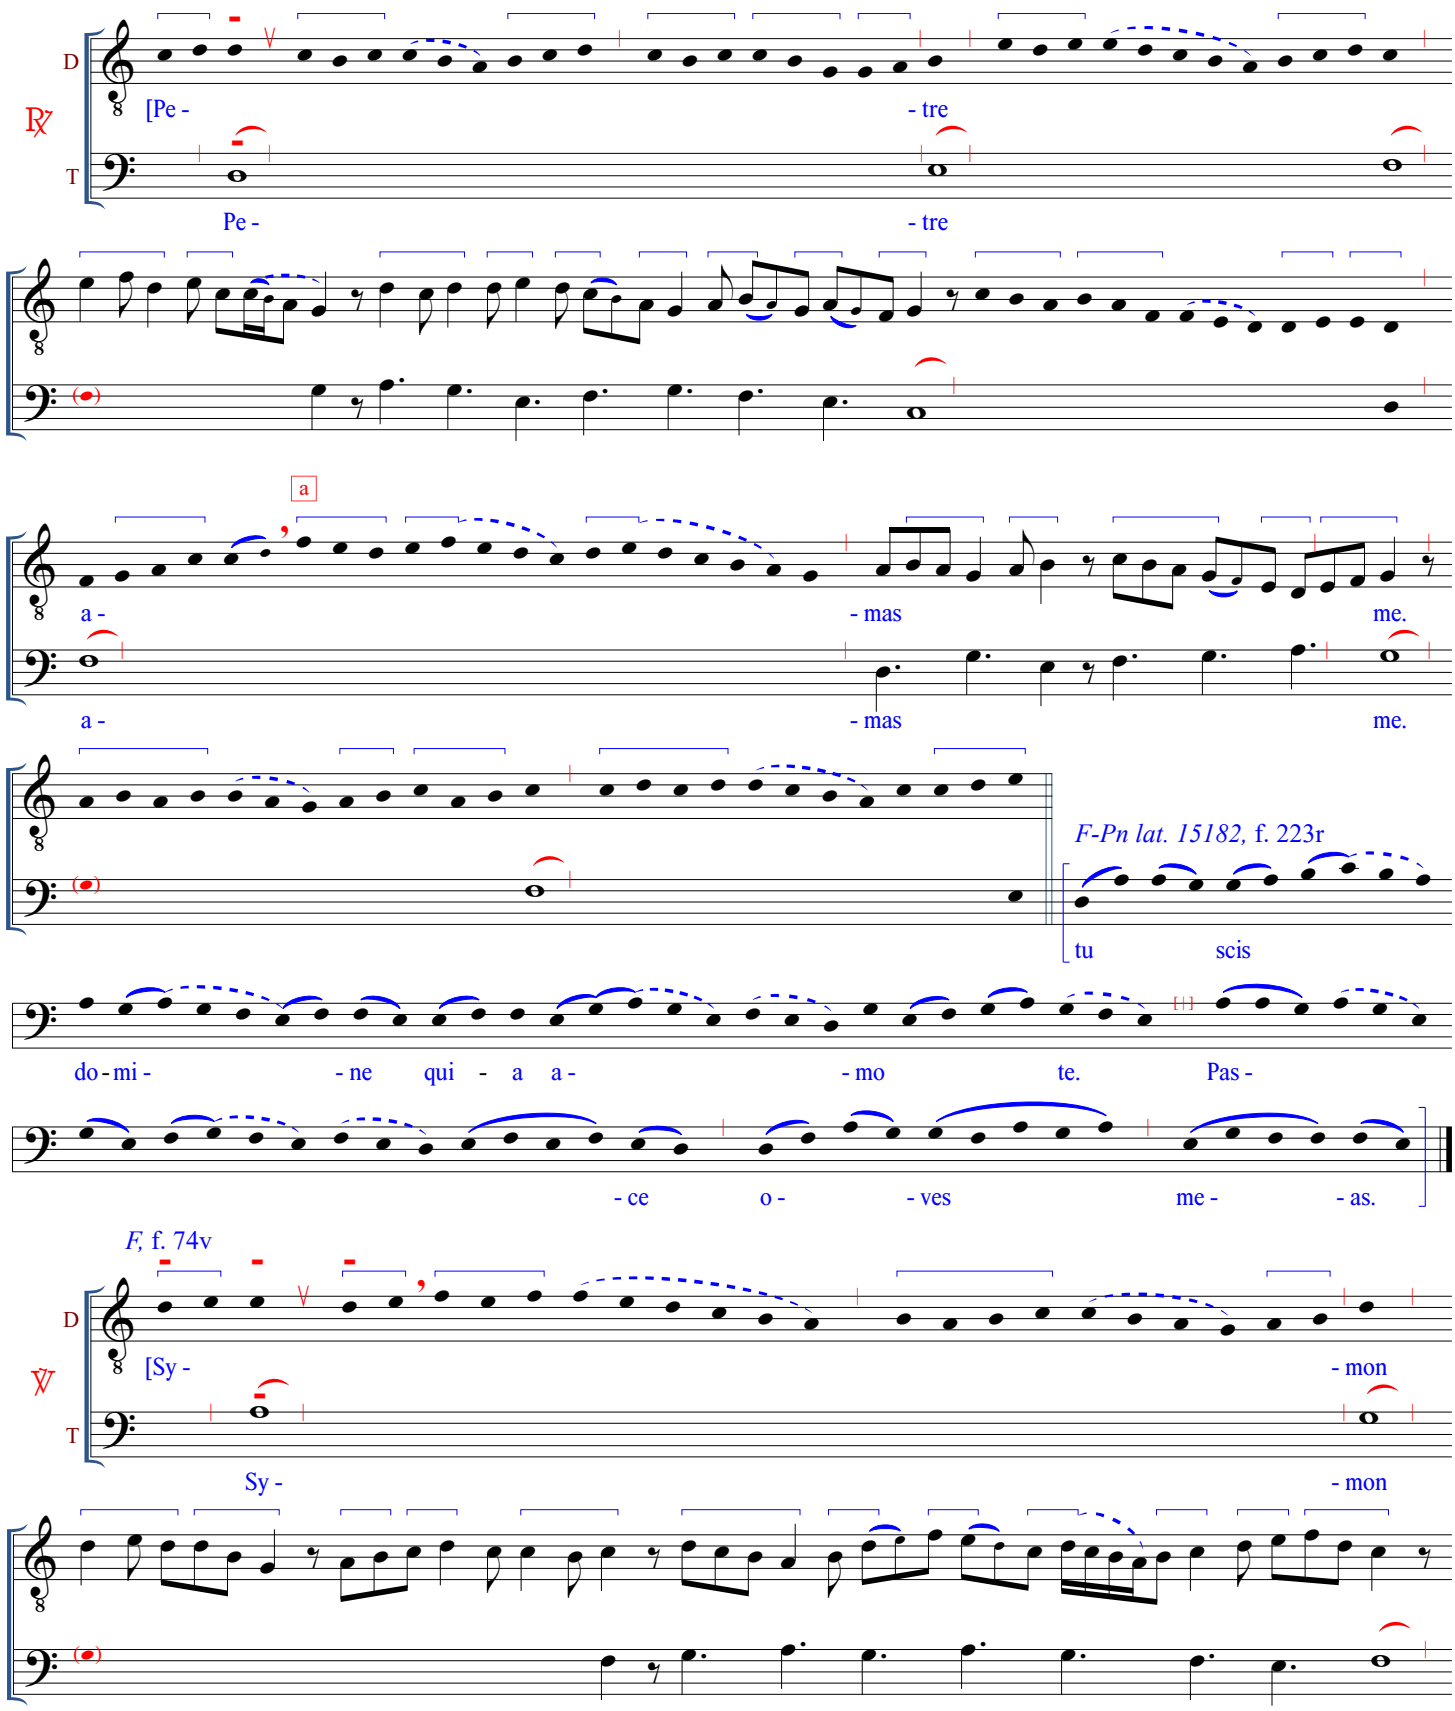
PETRE AMAS ME. SYMON IOHANNIS

Responsory [O15]

F, f. 74v (3,15)*



*The first T pitch in all consulted chant sources, Parisian or otherwise, is f. The opening d in the organum T seems unlikely to be a scribal error, given its pairing with the c-d-d incipit and following phrase in the D. Hence, should a plainsong performance of the complete 2℟℣ be desired, it is conceivable that one might wish either to raise the incipit and following D phrase by a third in the first ℟℣, or lower the initial T pitch of the 2℟℣ to d. That way, both parts will agree.

(For the GP of O17, no polyphonic setting is given in F, and only an incipit was ever entered in F-Pn lat. 15182, ff. 307r and 536v, and in F-Pn lat. 10482, ff. 335v and 488r. Should one desire a GP, suitable polyphonic alternatives are available from O4 [In columbe. Vox domini, F, f. 67v], O31 [Terribilis. Locus iste, F, f. 86r], O32 [Omnis pulchritudo. A summo celo, F, f. 91r], O33 [Repleti sunt. Loquebantur, F, f. 92r], and O34 [Igitur dissimulata. Cui sacerdos, F, f. 92v]. If one wishes to perform the segment in chant, the GP of O33 from F-Pn lat. 15181, f. 345r (CCCXXXIIIr) has been called upon below to complete the incipit given in 15182, f. 307r, since this is the only one of the above-mentioned candidates within the Parisian chant MSS F-Pn lat. 15181, 15182, and 10482 that has a fully notated GP with a melody that approximates the ℣ of O17.)

F-Pn lat. 15182, f. 307r

(After the GP incipits, both 15182 and 10482 specify a restatement of the entire ℟. It may be performed in polyphony as before, or in chant, as below)

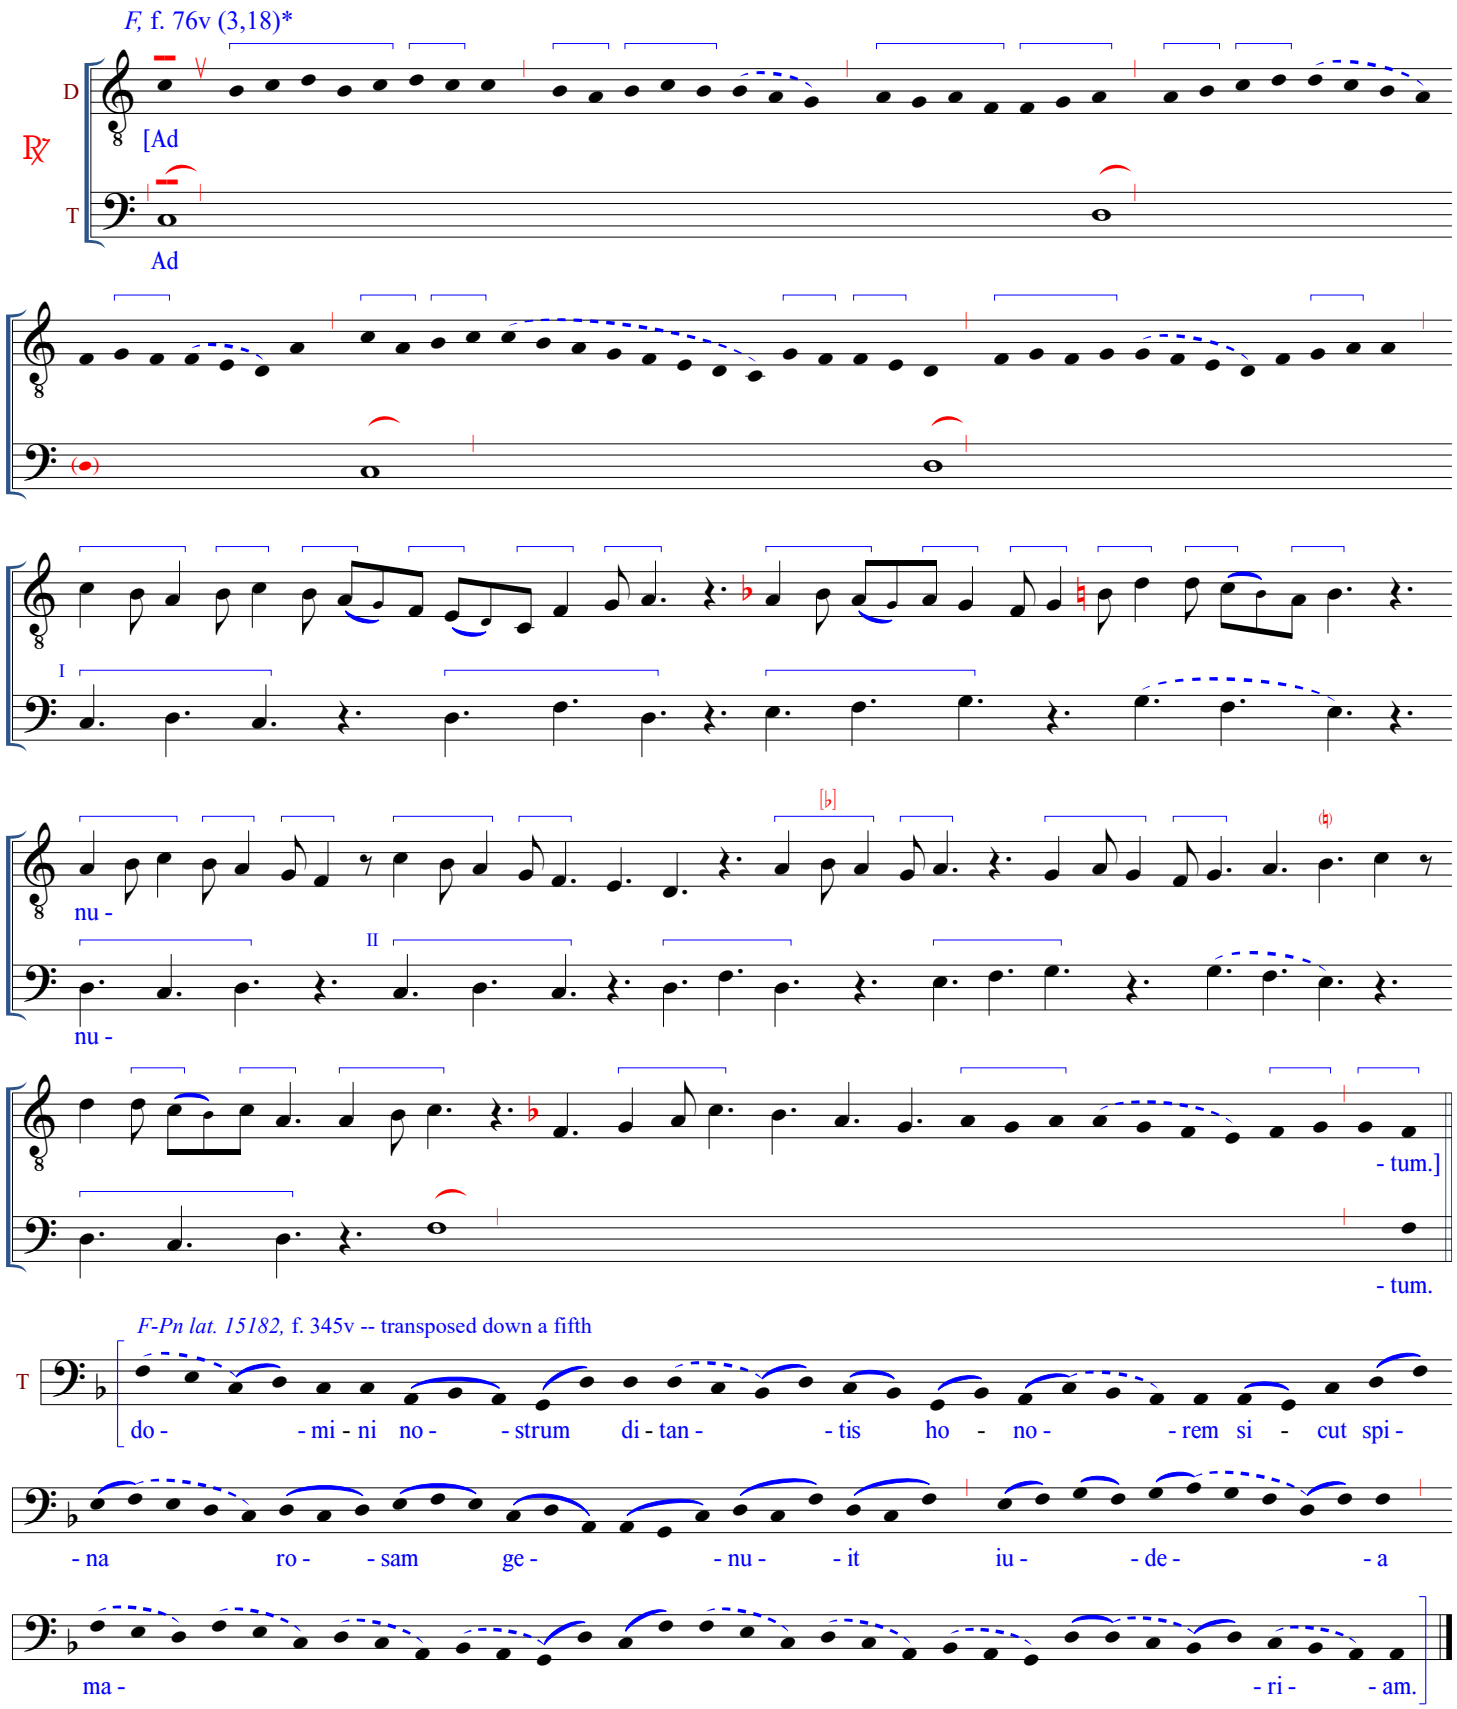
AD NUTUM. UT VITIUM
Responsory [O18]



*The organum setting of the respond is written a fifth lower in comparison to the verse, GP, and contemporaneous Parisian chant MSS; the chant repetenda that follow the verse and GP have been held at the same transposed pitch level as the respond, although they could certainly be performed at the higher, untransposed level. For other organa that feature transposed sections, see the closing remarks for M18 (Alleluya. Christus resurgens, F, f. 112r).

SOLEM IUSTICIE. CERNERE DIVINUM

Responsory [O19]*

*As Wright, Music and Ceremony, p. 257, note 73, relates, this chant served as the eighth Matins responsory on the feast of the Nativity of the Virgin at Notre Dame, a location that would seem to preclude organal performance. The verse could be sung in polyphony in the cathedral liturgy during processions prior to Mass on this feast, but placement befitting an organal setting only occurs outside Notre Dame in the use of several Augustinian monasteries in Paris (see ibid.).

A full chant presentation of the respond then follows, in case it should be desired.)

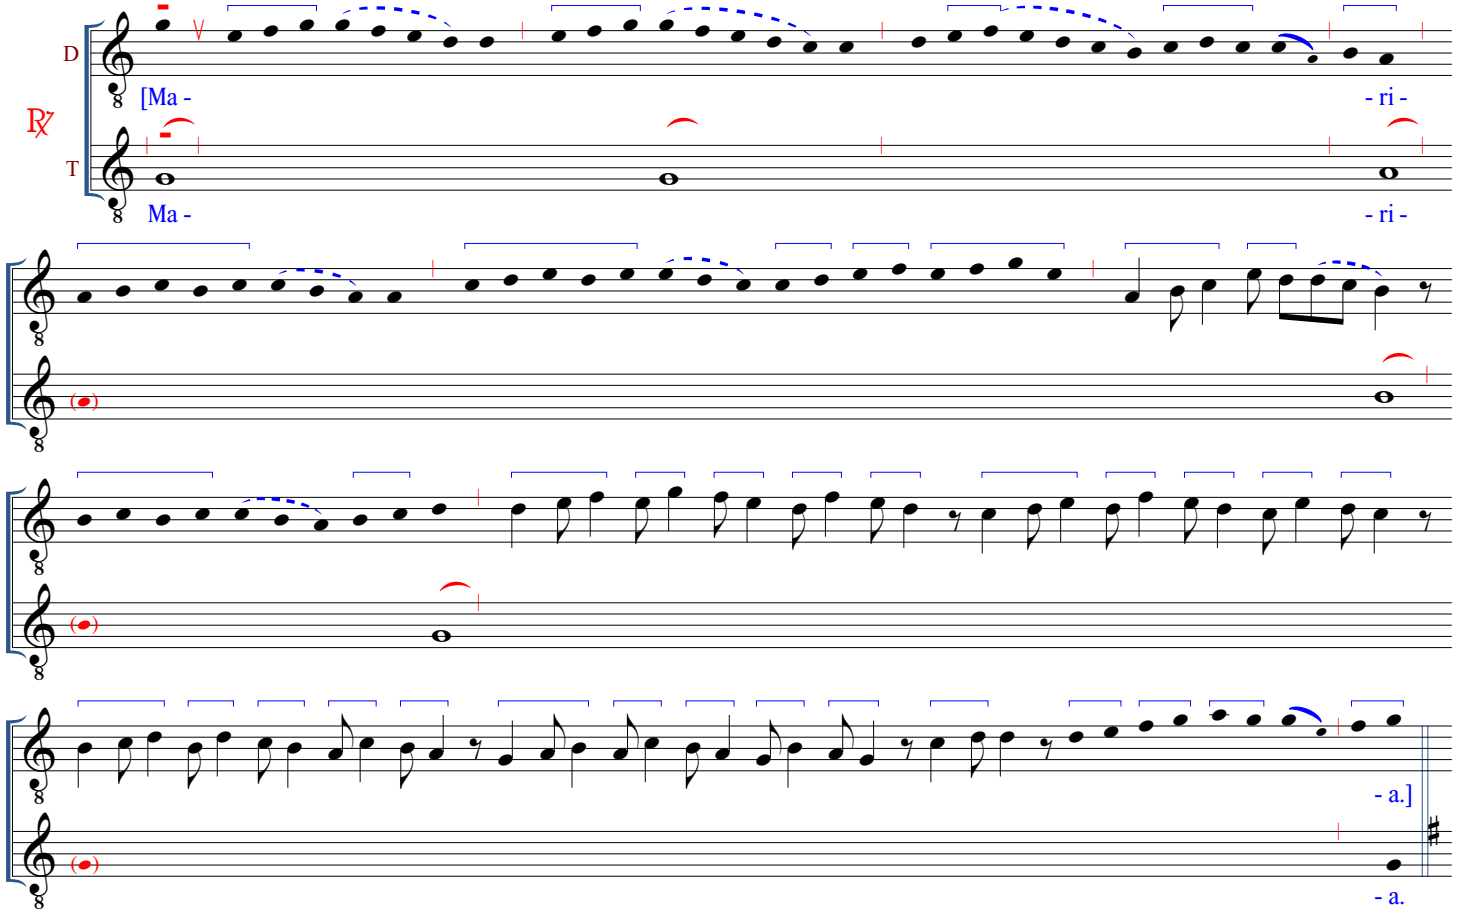
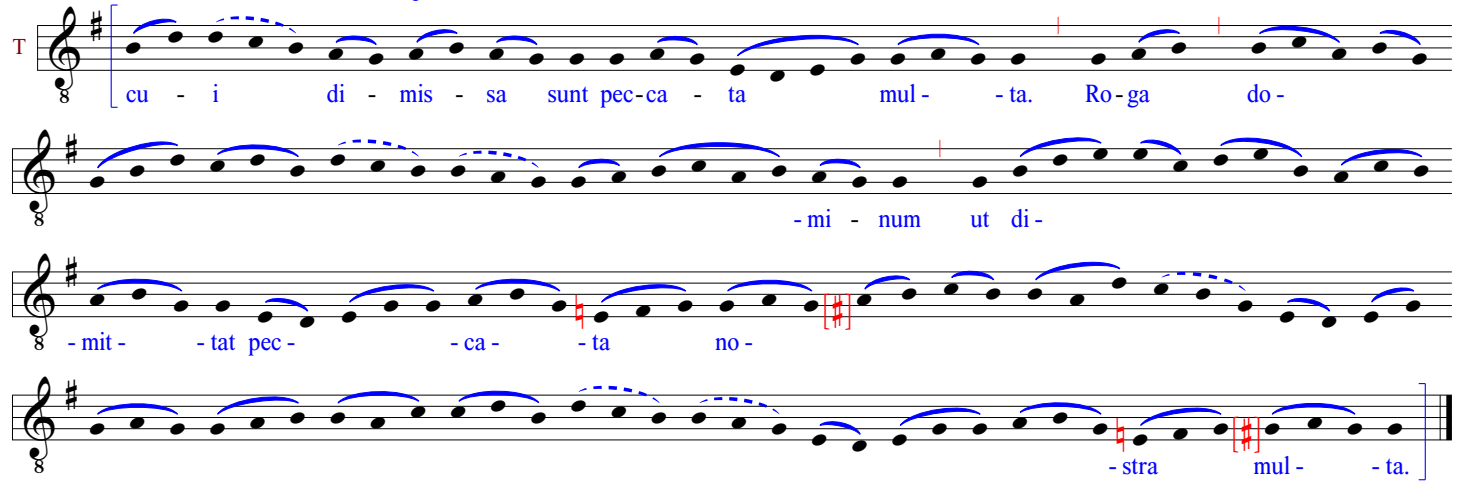
MARIA. CUI PROPRIUM
Responsory [O20]

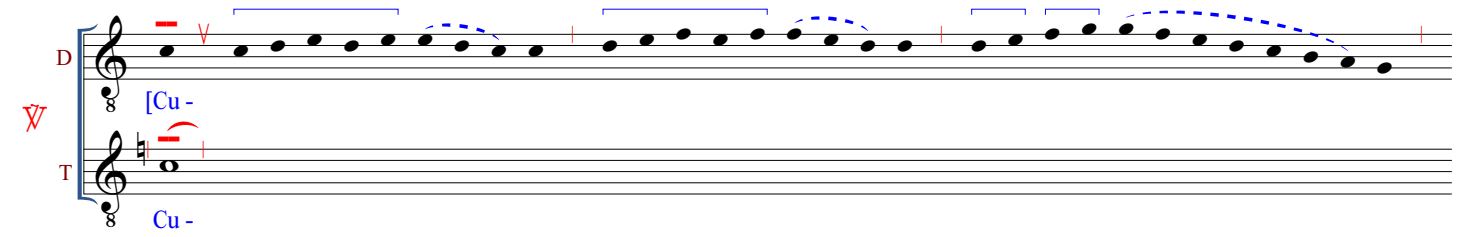
F, f. 77v (3,20)*



F-Pn lat. 15182, f. 255v -- transposed down a fourth



F, f. 77v (3,20)



*The entire organum (℟, ℣, GP) is transposed down a fourth from the pitch level found in the chant MSS F-Pn lat. 15182, f. 255v, and F-Pn lat. 10482, f. 457v. For more information on the transposition of organa, see the closing remarks for M18, Alleluya. Christus resurgens.
Note also: this piece is liturgically out of order, as the scribe apparently thought it was intended for the Nativity of Mary; actually it is for Mary Magdalene (Husmann, "Enlargement," 193; referred to by Wright, Music and Ceremony, 258, note 78)

*For an examination of the "quem queritis" trope as a BD source, see Barclay, "The Medieval Repertory of Polyphonic Untroped Benedicamus domino Settings," I: 43-48. In this study, a much simpler, more widespread form of a melody closely related to the T of the BD II organum is catalogued as number 36 (I: 65). Huglo, "Debuts," 150, presents this same item as number 116 in his catalog of BD chants, with a list of sources on p. 153 that expands slightly the one given by Barclay. Also, the opening phrase in the D may be offered in faster values so that the opening two T pitches (plus rests) occupy the time of one L each.

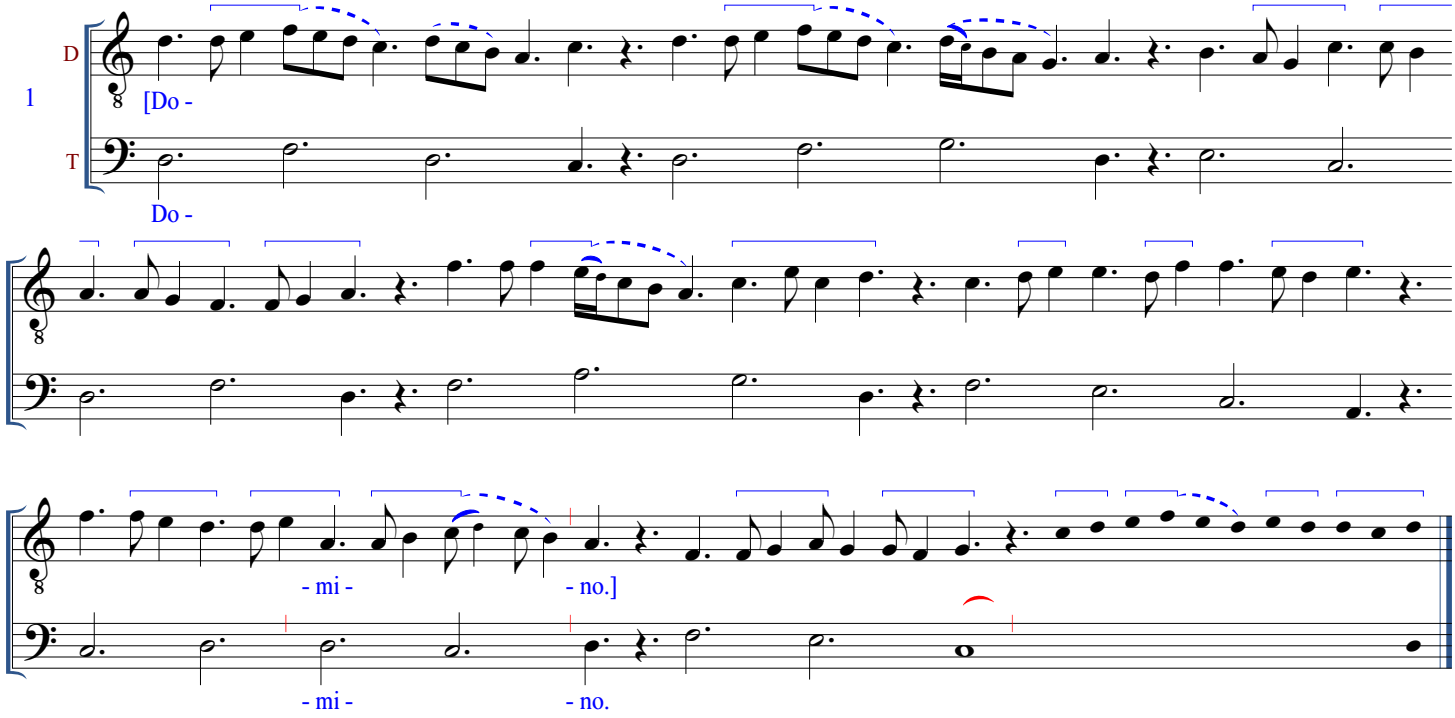
8 "DOMINO" CLAUSULAE

(BD I "Domino" melody derived from melisma "eius" in responsory Stirps Yesse. Virgo dei [O16])

* = motet concordance, when it appears after an item numeral; item numerals in bold italic type indicate clausulae possibly derived from motets.

1. F, f. 88v, I (3,39): Domino 9 (VdW F-501) [BD I]*

*Realization in modes 1 or 6 also possible; see the following alternative version.



(Alternative reading of no. 1 in mode 6)*

*Phrase endings may also be read: ♪𝅗𝅥

2. F, f. 88v, II (3,40): Domino 10 (VdW F-502) [BD I] (all but a few phrases = "Domino" of BD I.4 a2 in W1, f. 97r [106r])

3. F, f. 88v, III (3,41): Domino 11 (VdW F-503) [BD I] (= motet Virgo singularis [655] / Eius [O16])

| D: F: 1 of 2li=c, from Mo

4. F, f. 88v, V (3,42): Do[mino] 12 (VdW F-504) [BD I] (= motet Ne m'oubliez mie bele et avenant [754])*

*The high degree of fracture in the D presents occasional obstacles to rhythmic interpretation, ones that are not always surmounted by recourse to the concordant motet in Mo. The attempt here aims toward consistency in realizing similar ligature constellations and melodic repetition. Additionally, the last two text syllables are omitted in F, not underlaid in Mo, and may not have even been intended for inclusion. Their presence and placement here (4 notes later than usual) is therefore hypothetical.

5. F, f. 88v, VI (3,43): [Do]mino 13 (VdW F-505) [BD I]*

*Occasionally rhythmically ambiguous in notation; unusual readings here prompted by consonance.

6. F, f. 89r, II (3,44): Domino 14 (VdW F-506) [BD I] (= motet Hier mein trespensis d'amours m'en alai [750])*

| T: putting these 4 notes under final D phrase (not in motet) also possible
- mi - no.]
- mi - no.
*Although the D music over T color I of this piece seems initially to imply mode 1, the second color often presents ligature patterns more evocative of mode 2. Also, within this same portion, a segment that features 2 simplices (a,d) followed by a lone 2li (ca), with all figures surrounded by strokes, could signal a short stretch of hocket. Thus, the alternative and conjectural readings below attempt to provide some other ways to realize this clausula.

*It seems quite plausible that this portion of the clausula could contain a hocket section (see remarks above), but it is very difficult to offer a result in terms of consonance and ligature readings that I find especially convincing. Hence (assuming that hocket is actually present), the solutions here and below are highly provisional.

7. F, f. 89r, III (3,45): Domino 15 (VdW F-507) [BD I] (opening 2 phrases [possibly in mode 1?] similar to "E[ius]" of F claus. 159 [O16], in mode 6)*
7
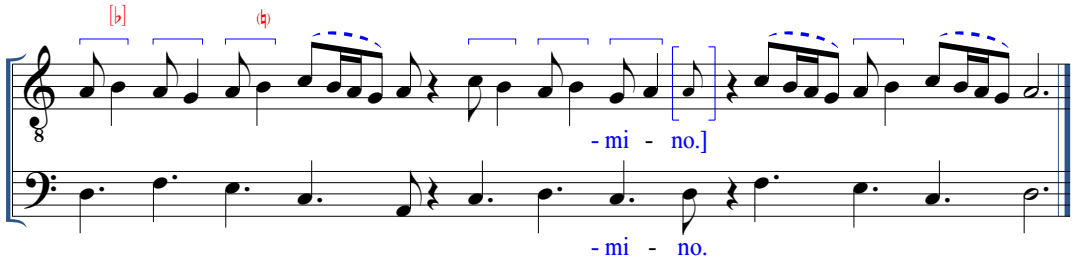
[Do -
Do -



*As before with Domino 14 (no. 6), there is some ambiguity as to which rhythmic mode (1 or 2) should apply, and for how long. The opening two phrases of no. 7 seem initially to suggest mode 1, while the remainder is more disposed towards mode 2. Readings in either mode throughout (as here in mode 2), or one that employs both, are therefore conceivable. Note also that the T melody is identical to no. 8, and these two melismas contrast with the tenors of all the other BD I Domino melodies transmitted in F. See the further implications of the identities between these pieces in the remarks on no 8.

8. F, f. 89r, IV (3,46): Domino 16 (VdW F-508) [BD I] (= motet Je langui des maus d' amours [756]; first 2 D phrases = part of "[Bene]di[camus]" of BD I.8 a2, F, f. 89v)*

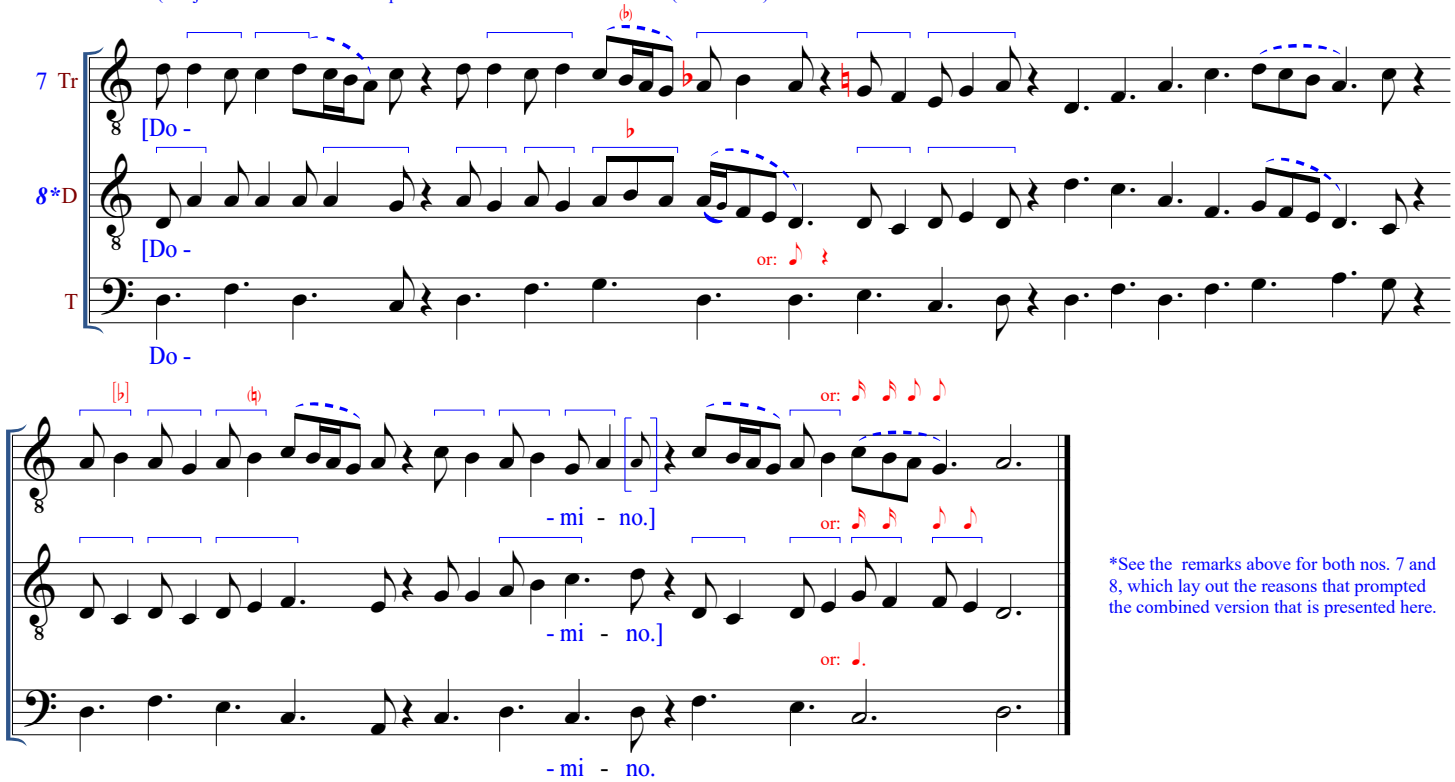
*As noted just above, Domino 15 and 16 (item nos. 7 and 8 above) have identical T melodies, and their particular T readings diverge slightly from all of the other Domino melismas derived from BD I that are contained in F. Furthermore, the rhythmic pattern and division of the T ordines by strokes is also duplicated in both pieces, save for a single extra stroke in no. 7. Such palpable connections between the two works also extend to the D voice, where, in addition to matching phrase divisions, the change to longer rhythmic values appears at the same location within each piece. Due to this striking series of correlations, it seems quite likely that these two clausulae were conceived in connection with each other in some way. As additional ammunition for this claim, it seems especially noteworthy that, during their course, each individual D voice happens to stake out registral territory that complements the other. This particular detail appears to be calculated so strategically, that it seems, in fact, to bar mere coincidence. With all of this information, it is therefore apropos to posit that these two pieces could be coupled as a clausula a3, in a manner similar to that of clausulae nos. 96 and 97 in fascicle 5 of F. In the present instance, though, there is no extant three-voice version to verify this hypothesis. Nonetheless, the results of such a conjecture, and the particularly attractive result it produces, appear immediately below.

(Conjectural combined transcription of Domino clausulae 15 and 16 (nos.7 and 8)*



*See the remarks above for both nos. 7 and 8, which lay out the reasons that prompted the combined version that is presented here.

OMNIS PULCRITUDO. A SUMMO CELO

Responsory [O32]

F, f. 90v (3,51)

*As Craig Wright has indicated (Music and Ceremony, p. 257, note 73), the verse text that appears in this organum is not the one most commonly prescribed in Parisian liturgical sources for the cathedral. Notre Dame usage tended to prefer "Nisi ego," sung to essentially the same melody as "A summo." Nonetheless, Wright has indentified at least one cathedral breviary that allows for the use of the "A summo" text by entering it underneath that of the existing "Nisi ego" verse (see F-Pn lat 15613. f. 278r -- Wright mistakenly gives 277v).

(The extent of the preceding repetendum follows the indications of F-Pn lat. 15181 and most of the other Parisian chant MSS consulted for this transcription. An alternative, however, in which the repetition begins earlier with "species eius," is provided by F-Pn lat. 15613, f. 278r -- see the conclusion of the above respond for this portion. Note that this is the same source noted above that contributes the "A summo" verse.)

(Since no GP appears in any of the chant sources consulted for O32 [F-Pn lat. 15181, 15613, 10482, 1090, and 12044], the preceding repetendum conjecturally restates the same conclusion after the above verse. Do note, though, the possible alternative suggested by 15613 in the remark that follows the verse.

(If a repeat of the full respond is desired, the polyphonic version from before or the following chant version may be offered.)

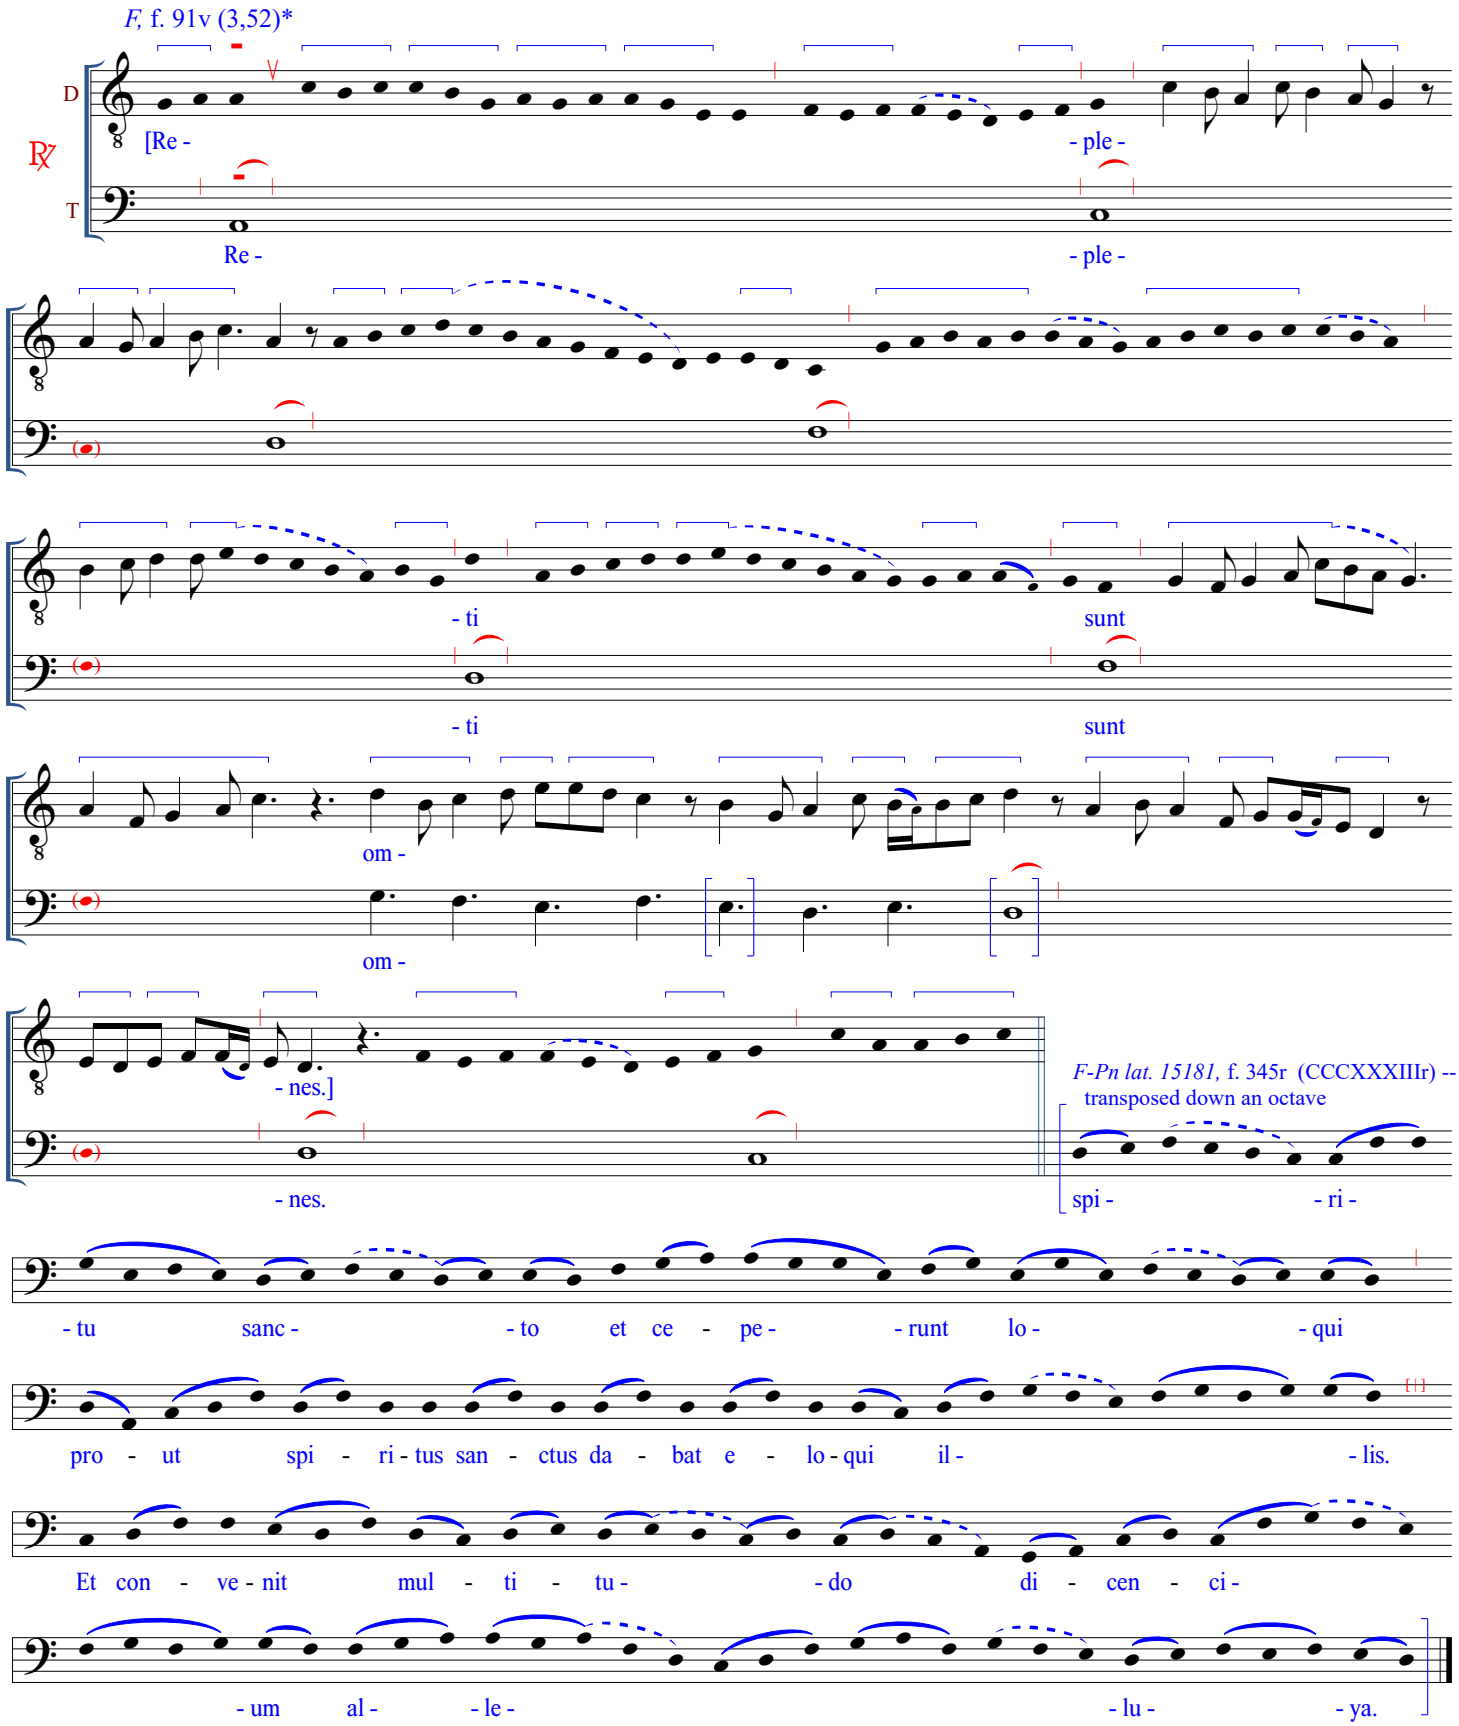
REPLETI SUNT. LOQUEBANTUR

Responsory [O33]



*The entire organum (℟, ℣, GP) is transposed down an octave from the pitch level found in the chant MSS F-Pn lat. 15181, f. 345r (CCCXXXIIIr), and F-Pn lat. 10482, f. 106r. In F-Pn lat. 15613, f. 288r, in contrast, the chant is only a fifth higher than the organum. For more information on the transposition of organa, see the remarks that conclude M18 (Alleluia. Christus resurgens, F, f. 112r).
